How to Refute the Jerome Gambit: There are various ways for Black to do well against the Jerome Gambit, as the sacrifice on f7 is simply wrong. If it's a light-hearted game on the Internet you might admire White's bravado, but if you come up against it at tournament level then it is best to be prepared: 1.e4 e5 2.Nf3 Nc6 3.Bc4 Bc5 4.Bxf7+ Kxf7 5.Nxe5+ Nxe5 6.Qh5+ Kf8N

Main notes are from Melbourne paper but GA MacDonnell also published it in ISDN for 3 Sept 1881 - he has got it from Adelaide Observer. 'A very interesting game played by correspondence a short time ago between Messrs H. Charlick and J. Mann.'
C50: Hungarian Defence and Giuoco Pianissimo
The variations preceded by "RR" were given by Gary Lane in an internet article on the Jerome Gambit at www.chesscafe.com in 2008. Blackburne, J. H.: '["Jerome Gambit". Played at Simpson's Divan about 1880.]' 1.e4 e5 2.Nf3 Nc6 3.Bc4 Bc5 4.Bxf7+ ML: This ingenious sacrifice was invented by Mr. Jerome, an American player, in 1874, and, unless correctly answered, yields a strong attack. It seems rather rash to venture on it in a correspondence game. - Not clear yet if the original notes from the Melbourne Leader chess column by Andrew Burns were by Burns or by Charlick. Reprinted in the Adelaide Observer, and subsequently by Mackenzie in his St. Louis Daily Globe-Democrat column. Research by Paul Dunn. Submitted to Chess Mail by Rick Kennedy, who is looking for information about early Jerome Gambit games.
